

BALDANZA

*ORGANIC

Organic wines are produced using methods that do not involve modern synthetic inputs such as synthetic pesticides and chemical fertilizers, do not contain genetically modified organisms, and are processed using a minimum amount of authorized additives. Low amounts of added sulfites are generally acceptable. Due to the various food standards agencies throughout the world, there are many different guidelines and regulations that determine whether a wine can bear an organic seal in a particular country.

BIODYNAMIC

Biodynamic viticulture is a method of organic farming that originated out of the work of Rudolf Steiner in 1920's Europe. It considers the vines and the winery as a part of the larger environment, balancing the soil, plants, and animals in a self-nourishing, living system. Methods unique to biodynamic farming (not found in organic viticulture) include the use of an astronomical sowing and planting calendar. Very few additives are used in the grape-growing and winemaking. There are independent certification agencies for biodynamic products, most of which are members of Demeter International.

NATURAL

There is no official definition or classification system for natural wines. Simply put, natural wine is just fermented grape juice. No added ingredients whatsoever. While you may not be able to taste the difference between an organic/biodynamic wine and its mass-produced equivalent, you must certainly will find natural wines to be unique in both nose and palate.
